But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

Matthew 19:14 & 18:6

The War on Children

Tragedically, we have an all-out war on children going on in our country. If you are a parent, grandparent or guardian, you need to understand this war and how it is being waged. No one will stand up for your children like you can. No one can protect your children like you will.

Children get assaulted in the battle involving origins. They are introduced to evolution from the most innocent of ages. Supposedly family-friendly movies, cartoons, and TV shows repeatedly drop in “millions of years” as settled science. Later, public school science textbooks and many classrooms seek to indoctrinate children with the idea they are just higher-order animals, subject to their emotions and hormones. Too many teachers and other authority figures mock the idea of a God Who created the universe, and in His image, men and women. Too often faith is made to seem unscientific, unreasonable and unpopular. Impressionable children easily buy the lie and begin to think and live accordingly.

The assault involving origins leads naturally to the assault on purity. Everywhere children turn today, personal purity and innocence are assaulted. The sexual revolution of the 60s blazed the way for the sexual autonomy and anarchy of today. That means exposure to sexualized images and talk to younger and younger children.

No Wisconsin school district is required to offer sex ed programs. But they all do. Even relatively conservative districts feel compelled to start sex ed with the 5 year-old kindergarten programs. By the time they reach middle school, children have typically been introduced—or soon will be—to homosexuality, contraception, and a host of other topics not appropriate for a church bulletin. They are taught that homosexuality and physical intimacy outside of marriage are normal and natural—after all, they’re just animals subject to their hormones and passion. They are subjected to surveys that make them wonder if they're normal if they are still pure. Too often they are expected to read in so-called "literature classes" novels that make illicit relationships seem right and fun—and almost always with no discussion of consequences or responsibility.

Add to the assault that goes on in the schools, the raw exposure to sex—almost always outside of marriage—in every form of entertainment possible—TV, internet, music, movies, twitter, etc. The average age of first exposure to pornography is now, unbelievably, nine. Children are being targeted! Blame the internet. Blame whatever you'd like, but that's the reality. There's a very real assault on children.

Another battle in the war on children is the effort to alienate parents and children. When the FDA approved in 2003 the euphemistically named "morning-after pill" for over-the-counter distribution for "all women of reproductive potential," parents were cut out from involvement in a potentially dangerous decision of their daughters. Minor girls can now, no questions asked, walk into a Walgreens and get a potent drug that, to make matters worse, could also very easily be abortion-inducing. Regardless of the circumstances, consumption of powerful drugs without parental involvement is rarely in the best interests of a child.

Federal and state law prohibits the medical field from sharing information with parents for treatments or prescriptions related to pregnancy and so-called "family-planning" for minors. Does that shock you? It should!

Making matters worse, entertainment often makes parents look like unnecessary, incompetent, meddling fools and the covert message is, "What your parents don't know won't hurt you or them." Notice we haven't even touched the assault on children waged by drug and alcohol use or human trafficking.

The war on children is vicious, unrelenting and real. The best defense children have are informed, involved, caring, loving, devoted parents who are dedicated to teaching, nurturing, and disciplining their children, instilling in them biblical truths and building into them as many safeguards as possible. Parents—your children are targeted. Will you be their defense?
