“It’s Convicting”

Several weeks ago I attended a prayer meeting of pastors. One pastor spoke with me after the meeting and shared that he reads these Tuesday emails every week. He told me they are convicting because he hasn’t visited his legislators with me at the Capitol yet but has a burden to.

I appreciated my pastor friend’s transparent honesty with me; but truthfully, it is not my goal in these short emails to manipulate you or send you on any kind of guilt trip. All I want to do is regularly encourage you to be praying for our elected officials and to make at least one visit a year to the Capitol to visit one or more legislators. I will do anything I can to facilitate your visit. I am convinced that when you come you will receive a blessing, and you will be a blessing.

Making a visit to the Capitol to connect with one or more legislators is easy to do. It is also easy to not do. Here is the reality we all face: most of life and ministry is like this. Things that we want to do, that we plan to do, are almost always easy to do—and easy to not do.

Now about that diet and exercise plan....

In Christ,
